Bring your business ideas to life faster

These are times to bring good ideas to the market quickly. No time to lose. And you don't have to lose time with Low Code application development. You can forget that term, it's about the idea behind it: building software together with blocks. While you watch and participate we realize a Proof of Concept in no time. Sometimes even within a few days.

Do you recognize this?

You have a great idea for your business and want to bring it to practice right away, but everyone is throwing roadblocks. It is impossible, it is too complicated, there is no budget or no time... Silence negativism and prove your right with a solid Proof of Concept that Fruition Partners will build with you in record time.

Suppose you have a genius insight. A good idea to serve your customers even better or to reduce the pressure on your back office. Not a radical change or grandiloquent view, but simply a small, practical solution that makes life a lot easier. For example, an app that allows your customers to calculate how much they can save with your product or save points. Or a useful booking system for your website, with which they can reserve a time slot, a seat or a product with you via computer or telephone. It can be anything.

Proof of Concept

The question with such ideas is always: What would it look like? And how would it work in reality? Questions to which you want quick answers. Very quickly. And you can receive those answers with a Proof of Concept from Fruition Partners. We work with a new development technique by which we can translate your business ideas into a working solution in record time - sometimes even in just a few days - together with you. Ready to go live. You probably think this isn't possible. Believe us: it is! With Low Code. We won't bother you with the technology itself, but you can imagine the following solutions:

- A website and a phone application that look identical and can both process customer orders and questions.
- A user-friendly replacement of xls sheets with complicated calculations
- Keeping track of inventory
- Supporting a (temporary) discount action
- Replacing customer cards, like loyalty programs
- Knowing who or what is where, through connection to a GPS system

The possibilities are endless.

Best of all, you don't have to wait for your IT department. We'll do it together. Because it's YOUR idea and it's in YOUR head. So please join us at the drawing board. In record time, the solution you had in mind is created right under your eyes. Or even better. Realising ideas together is very enjoyable and inspiring. Because the ideas immediately become clear and are translated into visible results. "Look, is this what you meant? Or did you have something else in mind?" You'll be amazed. It's almost Lego, only then with IT. And often we come up with even more ideas, because by seeing the solution grow on the screen, even more fun additional ideas are created. Once you are up and running, you are unstoppable. In the next paragraph you can see a few examples of solutions that we have already successfully created.

A few examples

Below you will find some examples of solutions that we have already successfully created:

1. For a well-known Dutch restaurant we have developed a reservation system that allows customers to book a specific table in the restaurant. In the back-office, the restaurant makes the table arrangements and automatically confirms the reservation. This system now supports the new COVID-19 rules for the hospitality industry.

2. For a specialist in crop growth, we created an app with which advisers support customers in the sales process. It also allows customers to make quicker decisions about their purchases based on their business situation.

3. For a foundation we built an application for a customer registration system with a link to the financial system and another ordering system. There is a clear overview of status, pending actions and payments per customer.

4. For an agricultural company we developed a solution that minimizes manual work for growing plants to the limit.

Advantages of Low Code development:

✔ Quick translation of an idea in your head to a solution on screen

✔ Rapid development, so lower development and operational cost

✔ User-friendly solutions

✔ Attractive, visual way of application building that you understand

✔ You bring innovation to life within your organisation
